What is Self-Quarantine?

Isolation and quarantine help protect the public by preventing exposure to people who have or may have a contagious disease.

SELF-QUARANTINE

Quarantine is for people who are not sick, but may have been exposed.

Quarantined people may or may not become sick.

Quarantined people should stay at home for 14 days so they don't spread disease to healthy people.

If you are quarantined and you become ill, you can seek medical treatment from a healthcare provider.

Individuals self-quarantining should monitor themselves for symptoms, including taking temperature two times per day and check for other symptoms.

ISOLATION

Isolation is for people who are already sick.

Isolation separates and restricts the movement of sick people so they can't spread disease to healthy people.

Isolation is a routine procedure in hospitals and healthcare facilities.

WHAT THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT IS DOING

The Westfield Regional Health Department (WRHD) has been and will continue to actively monitor the evolving situation involving COVID-19 in New Jersey.

In addition, we are reviewing and sharing the guidance that is being provided by the New Jersey Department of Health (NJDOH) and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).
